

PATRICK ALLEN SELECTIONS

IMPORTED BY UNITED ESTATES WINE IMPORTS, LTD.

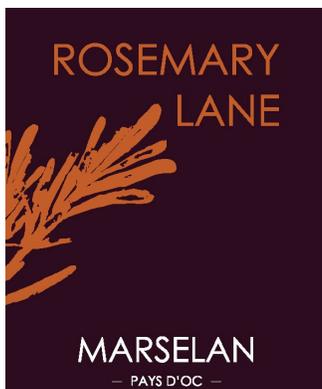

ROSEMARY LANE

Legend has it that, the Virgin Mary spread her blue cloak over a white-blossomed rosemary bush while she was resting. When she awoke the flowers had turned blue. From then on, the plant became known as the "Rose of Mary".

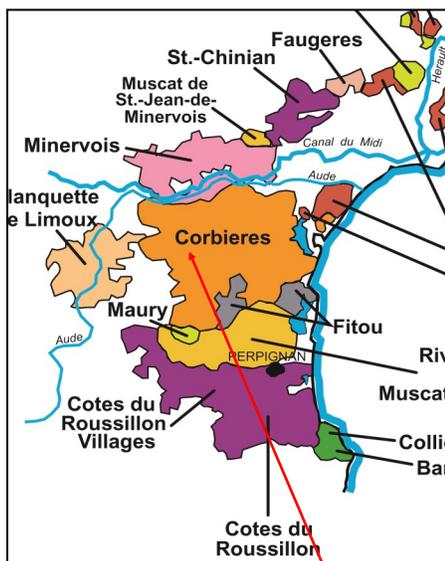

Rosemary Lane wines are produced by a micro-négociant, owned by three friends who call themselves "The Wine Artisans". The three friends: Sébastien Gimenez, Karine Ambrosini, and Frédéric Corpel met at oenology school, and now have a combined 40 years of experience in the wine industry. After working for large wineries and coops, making wine, working in sales, etc., they decided to work for themselves. Their current winery, at Domaine de la Baquière, located in Corbières near Carcassonne, is owned by Frédéric. Frédéric is also in charge of vinification, Sébastien is in charge of sales, and Karine is in charge of logistics.

Sébastien, Karine, and Frédéric

A brilliant idea: Working as oenologists, Sébastien, Karine, and Frédéric consulted with about 20 wineries. Each vintage, they observed that these wineries had excellent, surplus, wines that they just sold off in bulk. As a group, they came up with the idea of, not only working with these wineries, but bottling some of this "surplus" wine under their own label. Oddly enough, with all of the wine produced in the Languedoc, there is a lack of négociants of this size. They invested in modernizing their winemaking equipment, and bought a high quality bottling line. Rather than stocking all of the wine at their winery, which is too small, they stock the wine, in their own tanks, at the various producers they work with. Then, as needed, they transport the wine to their winery where it is conditioned and bottled. This allows them enormous flexibility, and the ability to maintain high quality standards.

Corbières

Rosemary Lane - Marselan - Vin de Pays d'Oc

Technical Notes: Many grape varieties have mysterious origins, Marselan however, does not. This grape variety was invented by Paul Truel in 1961, in the town of Marseillan, in the South of France. It is a hybrid of the two grape varieties Cabernet Sauvignon and Grenache. Still relatively unknown, this grape can produce delicious, juicy, easy drinking reds. The wine is destemmed and crushed, before undergoing a temperature controlled fermentation in tank. After fermentation, it is allowed to rest on its lees in stainless steel tanks before a light filtration and bottling.

Tasting Notes: This wine is unusual, in that it is simultaneously dark and concentrated, while having soft tannins and lush fruit. In the glass the wine is deep purple in color, the nose is spicy with hints of black fruit. In the mouth, blackberry and plum notes mingle with hints of black pepper spice. The finish is soft and round, making this an extremely versatile food wine. This wine is ideal for everything from barbeque and burgers, to pizza and pork chops. Enjoy!